

Instant Web Publishing Updates in FileMaker 7 v3

When creating a new record with Instant Web Publishing, new related records cannot be created until the new master record has been committed. If you create a new record from a layout that contains related fields, you must first commit the new record before you can enter or edit the related fields.

Commit the record by clicking the Submit button or performing a Commit Record script step.

Corrected a problem in Mac OS X where web users might receive "Unknown error number 801" when logging into a database that had been idle for several days.

Mozilla-based browsers can now activate custom script buttons.

Web preferences have been encrypted for greater security.

Base fonts of text objects may now be overridden without unexpected effects on the web.